CROWDS LEAVE AS BALLOON PREPARES

Rain Balks Attempt of Herb Churchill to Sail for Second Time in the Good Ship Paul I.—May Sail Today.

"Paul I" did not attempt its second trip to the clouds Sunday afternoon. The crowd balked. Not that Herb Churchill, the daring one-armed balloonist, was to be cowed by the slight drizzle that commenced shortly after dinner but the one and only condition that attends Churchill's flights is that there must be a crowd. The balloonist has never yet been known to steam away in the dark of night and sail away in his gas bag for the pleasure that it affords him. Nor is he after the money. As he himself declares it is the crowd, the murmured "Ohs" and gasps that come up from the multitudes as the balloon is cut loose that Churchill craves and when there is no crowd, a trip to the clouds loses its glamour for the dauntless pilot of "Paul I."

Sunday dawned in a cheerless manner. All morning dark clouds hung in the heavens, threatening rain or snow or something that would be unfavorable to a balloon flight. But neither came at noon not even a little wind so Churchill decided to go up. The balloon was taken out and its inflation started. The crowd commenced to gather. Slowly the big monster took shape and all was well. About 2 o'clock, however, a slight rain began to fall and the crowd began to leave. Churchill watched both with a sinking heart. "Thun of a gun, think we's havin' a p'p'und," said the balloonist in the little brogue all his own.

But the crowd went until a struggling youth or two remained. The balloon was now about half filled. The crowd gave the trip lost its thrill so Churchill gave the order and the mammoth bag was turned over and the precious gas sacrificed to the winds for better luck another day.

It is understood that if the rain stops and the weather is otherwise agreeable Churchill will make a flight Monday afternoon. He is anxious to try the double parachute drop and cannot wait for a clear day in which to go up. Several days ago the maiden trip was made with the new balloon, the only one, by the way, ever made in Mishawaka, and Churchill made a beautiful flight alighting, however, in a network of "live" wires. Only one parachute was used on this trip and it was not of the usual sensational order pulled off by Churchill. The present balloon, it is understood, will accommodate five parachute drops and leave it to Churchill there will be as close to five parachutes tacked onto the bag as it goes into the air as the balloon itself will permit. Churchill and a companion are camped in a tent at the "aviation field" at the corner of Spring and First sts. The balloon is being kept here and will start on its second flight from this point.

DO TEN POLITICIANS SUPPORT "BIG FIVE"

Local Citizens Are Wondering Whether or Not Charges of Bossism in Independent Movement Are True.

The little incident that broke out at the republican-moose-citizens meeting the other evening that uncovered the alleged fact that the bosses behind the new movement selected on their own inspiration and without consulting anyone, a broom as the emblem of the new citizens' party, has set people wondering as to whether or not the independent movement is as independent as its name would indicate or whether there is not some truth to the opposition charge that it is a selfish movement in the interest of a few politicians seeking to get in control of the city's management under the plea of decency in city government.

At all the meetings of the combination ticket bosses, attended by supporters of the alleged boss rule it is said to have been the aim of the body controlling the new party to have everything appear above board and open. They have made good in doing this at the meetings and those good citizens who have relied only upon their sense of observation at the "meetings" are undoubtedly convinced of the independence of the new party.

But there were some with a spark of independence of their own in their makeup who refused to knuckle down to the dictates of the few real active ones in the new party unless there were real freedom in the organization.

These men began to think and then to investigate and their investigations are said to contain information that will show behind the "independent" curtain the alleged glaring bossism and dictation that is said to have fostered the new party.

Was "Free" at Birth.
When the party was born it was "free" and open to anyone. In other words anyone or everyone could run for mayor, clerk, or anything else if he so desired. But strange to say only one candidate for mayor and but a few for the other offices appeared.

How these men were brought out and the united support that is back of them has been revealed, it is said, to the seekers after truth by an investigation of the petitions filed with the election commissioners.

There are six offices on the ticket besides the ward councilmen. These are mayor, clerk, treasurer, judge and the two councilmen-at-large. Now all candidates for city judge filed their own petitions. This eliminates one and there remains the "Big Five" mayor, clerk, treasurer and the two councilmen-at-large.

Trying to dispute the statement of opposition party men that these five are the choice of the bosses behind the independent movement, disinterested parties are said to have met surprise as they looked over the petitions of these candidates. It was found that the petitions of all five bore the manuscript cover of Atty. H. H. Jernegan, chairman of the independent ticket movement and alleged to be one of the main cogs in the machine behind the ticket. The opposition to the new movement is said to have accepted this find as meaning that the petitions were all written in Jernegan's office. These five petitions, backed by the Jernegan cover, ask that the names of R. W. Gaylor for mayor, W. L. Kimball for treasurer, George Nutt for clerk and Millard Kerr and F. W. Kuss for councilmen-at-large be the nominees of the "independent" movement.

Another disclosure that the petitions are said to have given out is the fact that there were ten men, all well known political leaders and men of big following, who signed either all or most of these petitions. In other words the petitions of the "Big Five" were signed by ten men irrespective of who else was on the petitions to make the needed 25.

Looking over the petitions it was found that F. G. Eberhart and Walter Michael signed the petitions of the entire "Big Five" besides the four councilmen from their own ward. E. L. Beatty, J. A. Rishel, Norman S. Gingle and W. F. Miller signed four of the five and all save Beatty signed for their ward councilmen. E. J. W. Fink, W. D. Peiffer, J. Alvin Scott, and C. W. McCullom signed three out of the five and all signed for their ward councilmen.

Believe Charges.
Therefore in view of these disclosures it is said that the "investigators" who are said to be erstwhile independent men have become convinced that there is truth in the charges of bossism and machine rule as regards the citizens' or independent movement and they are said to have withdrawn their support.

The primary will tell. There are still those who are firm in the belief that the independent movement is as independent as its name would indicate.

unsullied as a new born babe and these are said to be of those who will make up the bulk of the votes gathered by the disinterested "citizens".

There are several interesting side lights that creep out of the "investigation." Why did the clique of men who are said to be the fathers of the new ticket if there is such a clique, insist as it would seem that they did, that all candidates for city judge file their own petitions. It is said that they wanted the support of all the candidates for the judicial possible in back of the "Big Five" and that they did not want to show favoritism as regards any of the candidates. It is said that all three of the candidates for this position, Atty. Ralph Feig, Justice Hiram Hunt and Atty. Clinton Saltgiver, are cogs in the "independent" machine and that the alleged triple Ralph combination could not afford to show favoritism. Then there is another question. What is to become of Edward Zweigle? Why was his petition not signed by any of the ten who signed the others? The one and only answer that those interested seem to be able to evolve is that Nutt is the machine candidate and that Zweigle will be "ditched" at the primary, not perhaps they say without the promise of political compensation at the hands of the party if the party comes into power after the election.

They are all interesting questions and those who sought to uncover the details of the formation of the new party are wondering whether to flee to escape the "muck" of politics.

CONCRETE NOW BEING POURED AT NEW BRIDGE

The north arch of the new Logan st. bridge has been just about filled with concrete and now presents a level floor ready for the roadbed. There are three other arches remaining and they will be filled within a week or so. When all are completed there will be a level bridge across the river and it is planned to immediately open it for passengers on foot.

It will take some time for the roadway or pavement to be constructed as well as the concrete railing but the contractor in charge is rushing the work and expects to have it completed when snow begins to fly in earnest.
